An Update From Friends of Ski Mountain Mining History

As you slide into the Bonanza chair at Park City Mountain, look left to admire the mighty Silver King Coal Mine building. Restoration of this iconic 1926 structure is now complete, thanks to a 5-year, $1.6 million project managed by Friends of Ski Mountain Mining History, a committee of the Park City Museum. Only in Park City can you ski or ride through a National Historic District. The newly restored Silver King Coal Mine building stands as a tribute to Park City's silver-to-snow history.
